DAVIS THEATRE.

Presenting The Mysteries of Paris by Eugene Sue in Four Parts.

One of the strongest bills presented in Norwich will be seen at this cosy theatre for the last half of this week. The list is headed by Gregorei and fillmina who present a new novelty entitled the Furniture Tussiers. There are four people in this act and Mile. The fillmina is considered the most perfect formed woman in the world and the only lady who can perform those wonderful feats such as balancing tables, dressers and all hig articles of household furniture. Ted and Cora Breton have a delightful singing and talking specialty to offer full of good Breton have a delightful singing and talking specialty to offer full of good comedy which will surely catch the house. Dan J. Harrington presents a ventriloquial novelty, A Bad Bargain, one of those funny ventriloquist acts that please both young and old. The feature photoplay is The Mysteries of Paris, in four parts, a picture version of Eugene Sue's wonderful story that has thrilled the whole world and is considered one of the greatest literary works ever written. Sue knew his Paris as few people know their country and this wonderful picture shows to the eye what he saw and wrote about Paris, its joys and sorrows, mysteries and all that goes to make up that great city. A real sensational frame in four reals make up that great city. A real sen-sational drama in four reels. Other good dramatic and comedy pictures make up one good bill. There will be the usual matines today at 2.30. Bunty Pulls the Strings at 8.15 tonight.

BREED THEATRE

Notre Dame de Paris, Hand-Colorec Three-Reel Feature.

Breed theatre is showing today an immense Pathe spectacle, entitled, Notre Dame de Paris, produced in three reels, and handsomely colored. This is from the famous tragedy of the same name, by Victor Hugo, and is one of the finest films d'art that Pathe has sent out in several seasons. The feature is extremely Hugoesque and is full of all the character-virility for which he was famous. A powerful factor in this superb production, is the presentation of many of the greatest scenes before the present in the superb production. est scenes before the actual doors of the cathedral of Notre Dame. The act-ing is exceedingly finished, and the characters are carefully and artistic-

The Pathe Weekly today presents more subjects than usual, and the field covered is a wide one extending over two continents. Mr. Francis Bushman appears in a rollicking comedy entitled The Discovery, where father and son secretly love the same girl. Miss Sheasings delightfully Heart of My Heart.

Bunty Pulls the Strings at The Davis

Tonight. Theatregoers of Norwich are to have their first peep at that dramatic nov-elty, Bunty Pulls the Strings, which is at the Davis theatre tonight. Bunty is at the Davis theatre tonight. Bunty comes here after a solid year's engagement at the Comedy theatre, New York, and Messrs. Shubert and William A. Brady are sending us the original of the state of the sending us the original of the sending us the original of the sending us the original of the sending us the sending u inal imported company that has eclipsed all records in duration of runs. Although the locale is Scotch eclipsed all records in duration of runs. Although the locale is Scotch there is not a point missed by anyone. It is broadly comic and deals with a period when beaver hats, hoop skirts and quaint costumes were in vogue. The story centers around one Tammas Biggar and his family affairs. Tammas, when a young man, was to have been the husband of a fine buxom lassie, but on the wedding morning, fearing the expense of married life would be too burdensome, he deserted his would-be bride and left her "waiting at the church." He migrated to the small village of Lintie-baugh, where he married a daughter of a prosperous merchant. The wife dies, leaving one daughter, Bunty, and two sons. At the opening of the play Tammas is in very bad straits, having appropriated funds belonging to Susie Simpson, a vinegar faced old maid, who proposes marriage to him as a cancellation of his debt, which Tammas is unable to pay. About this time Eelen Dunlop, the "girl" whom he deserted thirty years previous, unexpectedly turns up, and Tammas is in a quandary. Here the master hand of Bunty makes itself manifest and commences adroitly pulling the strings to set matters right. Arrangements are made whereby the ubiquitous Susie Simpson's creditorship is established between Tammas and his erstwhile love, Eelen Dunlop, while Bunty and her lover, Weelum Sprunt, follow sult.

Auditorium Offers Another Big Show Today.

It will pay theatregoers of this city to keep an eye on the Auditorium programs, as this popular house is presenting some of the biggest features on the vaudeville stage. The excellent show of the first half of the week is closely followed by another equally as good, although on different lines. The headliner for today halls from the other side of the Atlantic and is called the Four Vestowfs. This clever quartette present an European dancing and musical act that is entirely out of the ordinary. The two ladies are both handsome women and claver dancers and the two gentlemen are expert musicians and singers. A good lively act.

The committee on military affairs made unfavorable report on the reso-ution appropriating $15,000 for a menorial building to be erected in honor of General Nathaniel Lyons at East-ford, and the matter was rejected. The committee suggested that if there was to be a memorial for General Ly-ons, that it should be located in the capitol or capitol grounds.

The act incorporating the Hinckley Home of New London, a home for indigent men, founded by the late Samuel B. Hinckley, received favorable report and was tabled for calendar. A resolution was passed authorizing the payment of $225 to William H. Taylor for compiling the Legislative Manual. Effort was made to have Harold C. Hall of Meriden receive half of the sum, as he had been appointed by the committee to do the work with Mr. Taylor. It was explained that Mr. Hall declined to work in harmony with Mr. The act incorporating the Hinckley declined to work in harmony with Mr. Taylor, and that "Souvenir" did the work and should receive the pay,

The committee on constitutional amendments made unfavorable report and the resolution was rejected which provided that instead of the state sen-ate being composed of 35 senators that there be 12 at large, and that each elector be entitled to vote for eight candidates, which meant a minority representation. Unfavorable report and like action was taken on a resolution abclishing the state senate and have the state divided into fifty representative districts, each district to have two representatives. The committee on excise made unfavorable report on the bill requiring saloons to close on Good Friday. The bill was rejected.

Mr. Maltbie of Granby for the committee then submitted an amendment defining the qualification of electors, and suggested that it be made the order of the day for noon of Wednesday, April 9. Mr. Wilson of Bridgeport spoke in favor of giving votes to women and referring the matter to the people, and favored making it the order of the day for general discussion. POETRY

WHAT HE CAN ALWAYS CATCH.

The fisherman fished in the waters And he fished by the mountain dell, He fished where the torrents roared their song.

And he fished in the lakes for a spell;

And he fished and fished, and he wished and wished That the fish would bite as they But it seems that they knew he was fishing for them.

For never a fish was caught!

He whipped the streams from the ics-Of the highest mountain peaks: He followed the course of the river's For seven or eight long weeks; And he tried new lures both early and late,

From brook down river to sea, Eut not in the brooks or the ocean One beggarly fish caught he

So he kept on wishing, and kept on fishing.

And kept on whipping the streams; At the time for dispersing he found himself cursing.

The fish he had seen in his dreamst "I have fished," he mouned, "where the lish were thick.

With hook and with spear and with seine.

But never a thing has nibbled for ma. And I think I will catch the train."

So fishermen all, read a fisherman's And when you have fished in vaia.

Just pack up your tackle and hope for the best. For you always can catch—the traini

THE KALEIDOSCOPE W. A. Brady has engaged Della Fox to play one of the roles in his forth-coming revival of Rosedale.

Thomas Conkey, who plays the prince in Sweethearts, was also the prince for two seasons in The Spring Maid. Two companies will be seen in The Conspiracy next season, the eastern one to open in Boston and the west-ern one in Chicago.

The Shuberts are to make a production here of Princess Caprice, which was given in the early part of the present season in London.

The next summer revue at the Winter Garden, under the Shubert direc-tion, is to be entitled. The Passing Show of 1913, and will be presented in David Belasco has another promis-ing pupil whom he is going to pre-sent in a leading role. Her name is Helen Freeman, and she has been un-derstudy in various of the Belasco Legrand Howland, a grand opera composer, has written a play called Deborah, in which the leading part will be played by Carlotta Nillson, who made a hit as the star of The

Walker Whiteside, who is to appear t the Auditorium with his play, Tho Typhoon, with an underlying Japanese theme, will begin with his engagement here the 32d week of the most successful season of his career. His points farthest west have been Victoria, B.C., and San Francisco. Nina Melville, who plays the only feminine role outside of Mrs. Fiske in The High Road, is a true cosmopolitan, having been born in the diamond coun-try of South Africa, lived three years in London, two years in Paris, a few in San Francisco, several in New York and one, which "made her education complete," in Hoboken. The production of Arnold Bennett's play, The Great Adventure, in Lon-don showed, according to the critical comment, power of dialogue and characterization more than of action. Wish Wynne scored in the leading feminine role, it being her first essay on the legitimate stage. The play is a dramatization of the author's story, Burled Alive. The Industrious Wasp.

Wasns appear to be well-nigh as industrious as ants or bees. One authority has declared that the cardinal doctrine of the wasp is: "If any wasp will not work, neither shall he eat." Division of labor is clearly seen in the wasps' nest. Some of the workers seem to be specially employed as for-agers and soldiers, others appear to be told off as nurses and guardians, while yet others engaged as papermakers and masons. Wasps are at all times particularly fond of honey. Toward the end of sum-mer, as all beekeepers know, they will force their way into the beehives and carry off by force as much as they can gorge of their winged neighbors' honey. The drones of the wasp world, instead of being idle and luxurious, are sober industrious and well-behaved members of the community. They clean the streets of their town with exemplary streets of their town with exemplary diligence, acting as public scavengers or eanitary officers and they have their reward, for, unlike the bee drones, they live their alloted life in peace and quietness until winter involves bota them and their maiden eisters in one common cataclysm of death and destruction.—Tit-Bits.
